Bedtime in a Box Testimonials

I love the checklist helps because I used to write it on paper but I keep the dry erase checklist on the fridge now and it helps keep it on my mind with housework.

Everything is beneficial, numbers and letters for bath, pajamas, books, and alarm!

Spot on for what they need! So many useful resources, She wanted to use everything and was so engaged with it all.

Administrator Feedback

Administrators were asked to provide feedback around these general questions:

1. Have you spent less time addressing Kindergarten behaviors compared to past school years?
2. Have you noticed a difference in Kindergarten readiness compared to past school years?
3. Looking at the Kinder Camp students from your building (listed below), how would you say these children have compared to their peers who did not attend Camp?

Administrator Feedback

Kinder Camp student behaviors have been very solid. We have not experienced any excessive behaviors other than those that would be attributed to any Kindergarten student for the first time entering a school environment. As a whole, I believe that the behaviors--even those that were anticipated--were far less severe than in past years and the longevity was far less.

The Kinder Camp students seemed to be ready for school as much as any kindergarten student can be. The camp definitely showed an improvement of students being better prepared for the "routines" of school and allowed students to assimilate much quicker to the classroom expectations.

In past years, many of our campers would have set the bottom score in our BOY Dibels assessments simply because they had no prior experience with a typical classroom environment. Many of our campers scored in the RED for overall composite scores, but I believe they were higher than what I would have anticipated without going to camp. We also had campers in the other categories as well.

Overall, I believe that the camp showed significant positive results both in behaviors and readiness. I do believe that the camp had an impact on the Dibels assessment, but it is hard to measure since they do not take this assessment prior to arrival in kindergarten.

Administrator Feedback

I can not compare time spent on behaviors from previous years as this is my first year in this role. I do know that from talking to the kindergarten teachers they have used the students that attended Kinder Camp as role models to show the other students' expectations in the classroom and within the school. I have no discipline issues with any of the students that attended Kinder Camp. The students that attended Kinder Camp came to school much more confident compared to some of their peers. It was great to see the confidence in these students as they were used as role models and knew the expectations.

Administrator Feedback

No, we have not spent less time with Kindergarten issues this year. We have more kindergarten students than we have ever had in this building (78). Even with four teachers there are several students who have never been to preschool or there are several who are "heavy hitters". When speaking with our teachers they wish more of our students had attended the Kinder Camp.

Kindergarten teachers are telling me that they are happy with the students who attended the Kinder Camp. They say that they have done a nice job adjusting to Kindergarten and that they were more ready for Kindergarten. It is the students who did not attend Kinder Camp with whom we are having the most issues.

Kindergarten teachers report that the Kinder Camp students seem better prepared for Kindergarten and many of the issues we are dealing with are with students who did not attend Kinder Camp.

Teacher Feedback

My students that participated in Kinder Camp came prepared with much needed knowledge to help transition into the classroom. They were familiar with many procedures and materials that were utilized at the beginning of the school year. This created a smoother transition for my Kinder Camp kiddos.

- Britney Ponce, Kindergarten Teacher (Lena Dunn Elementary)

I believe it helped those children feel more comfortable about coming to Kindergarten. It also helped them build positive relationships with teachers. It definitely helped me build early positive relationships with these incoming kindergarten students.

- Amy Matteson, Kindergarten Teacher (Griffith Elementary)

KinderCamp was an amazing transition for students entering kindergarten. Students were confident as they entered their classrooms. Teachers were able to make connections with students and families before the school year began.

- Alicia Hand, Kindergarten Teacher (North Elementary)
